AGREE Out of ten thousand regular physicians you cannot find one who will not say that Stimulants and Invigorants are absolutely necessary in medical practice. And yet in by-gone years humane practitioners have hesitated to administer them, because the fiendish ingenuity of wretches who make merchandise of human infirmities, had so polluted and deteriorated them that the remedy was deemed as dangerous as the disease. This perplexity is happily done away with. Physicians know, because the first analytical chemists of the age have demonstrated the fact, that Hostetter's CELE-BRATED STOMACH BITTERS are absolutely and entirely free from all pernicious elements. Hence they have been introduced into the United States Army, and are accepted, whereon the testimony of the wise, the intelligent and the philanthropic is rated at its just value, as the best protective against and cure for all diseases arising from impurity in the air or other unhealthy climate influences, that has ever been tested by experience. In cases of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, we state without qualification or reservation, that the Bit ters are as nearly infallible as anything prepared

THE RACE OF THE REBEL RAM Particulars of Her Destruction-Statement of an Eye-Witness. From the New Orleans Times, April 25.] The daring and fool-hardy attempt of the rebel steamer W. H. Webb to pass the gaunt-let of the Federal fleet on the Mississippi, well-nigh proved successful, but owing to vigilance, combined with good fortune, the effort failed. The Webb was seen passing the city under a full head of steam Monday morning. The excitement was intense, and astonished crowds ran on the levee to witness the extraordinary sight.

The first we believe that discovered the sinister purpose of the ram and compelled it to show its true colors, were the officers on board the Lackawanna. As the sam rounded the point, some old tars, possessed with a sharp lookout for things and matters in a very general nautical way, squinted a far off a "black squall." Officers at the same time thought the craft coming on, smoking and puffing so savagely, should have a sort of passport to show the honest intention of such extraordinary haste. The Lackawanna accordingly, as a sort of gentle hint, sent a two hundred and fifty pound ball, which struck her on the port bow, and piercing through, went out from the opposite side. She passed still, and with the rebel flag now hoisted, appeared to defy everything and everybody else in general. The only boat that was actually prepared to follow (so far as we can learn) was the Hollyhock, Lieutenant Commander Gherardi, with a detachment from the Lackawanna, under the command of the Assistant Engineer, J. B. Fort, on board as well. The boat dashed after the flying foe.

The race was tie and tie. The Webb, as is well known, was always a fast boat, and gallantly maintained its reputation upon this tremendous occasion, but the noble Hollyhock clung to her like an avenging Fate. In vain were the efforts of the rebel ram to elude the fast-coming ruin. Mile after mile was passed: the boats throbbed their flerce and flery way and apparently no advantage was gained on either side.

Suddenly, about twenty-eight miles below the city, the gallant Hollyhock close behind her, near St. Clair's Pass, the Webb beheld the vast proportions of the Richmond looming up like a lion of the sea in her path.

The Webb turned, but when the Hollyhock dashed straight at her she ran in shore, and the officers and crew, springing on the levee, fled into the swamps, first firing the vessel in several places. Thus ended this strange and eventful history. The United States vessel sent out boats, and the Webb was boarded and every effort made to subdue the flames, but all was in vain. Upon entering the engine-room a man was abandoned by his comrades to a fiery death. Happily he was saved by our gallant seamen. His name is Charles Preston. The ram carried a most destructive torpedo rigged forward, and attempted to destroy the ordnance ship Fearnaught, but happily failed in her attempt.

The Webb left Shreveport on Monday, the 16th instant. When she arrived at Cote's Landing, which is about twenty-five miles above Alexandria, she stopped and took in two hundred and fifty cords of pine wood. At 4.30 a. m., Saturday, she left Alexandria, and after coming down for some distance, anchored. On last Sunday she passed the fleet at the mouth of Red river. It is said that several shots were fired at her on this occasion, but without effect. She then passed down unchaltenged until she arrived in front of this city. It was here that her troubles commenced. She was armed with one 32-pound rifled gun, mounted on the forecastle, and two 12 pound iron cannon on the quarter deck.

GEN. WILSON'S EXPEDITION. Account of Rebel Property Destroyed-Large Capture of Cotton, Guns, &c.

From Savannah Dail we briefly announced the arrival of Capt. L. M. Hosea, of Gen. Wilson's staff, from Macon. He left there five days ago. In the party was Brigadier Gen. Long, commanding the 2d di-vision in the assault on Selma, and one of his

Gen. Wilson left Chickasaw, Ala., on the 22d of March. On the 2d of April he captured Selma, Ala, by assault, taking 32 pieces of artillery in position and 75 in arsenal; a large arsenal, the second in importance in the Confederacy; a naval foundry, very extensive, with valuable fixtures, powder works, &c., &c. All public property was destroyed.

A pontoon bridge, 850 feet long, was built across the Alabama river, by which Montgomery was reached. There the rebels burned 85 000 bales of cotton, 4 steamboats, 63 cars, 1 locomotive. Montgomery was entered with-ont opposition, on the 12th of April. Columbus was captured on the 16th by assault on the heavy field works. Twelve hundred prisoners were taken, fifty-three guns in position, one gunboat, then called the Jackson, but the name of which had been recently changed, mounting six 7-inch rifles, 100,000 bales of cotton, 13 locomotives, and 100 cars. While there a portion of the column made a detour to West Point, and captured the works by assault. The attack was made by dismounted cavalry. They took four guns and 350 prisoners. The Confederate Gen. Tyler, commanding, was killed; 15 locomotives and 200 cars were taken. All the captured property was destroyed. Macon surrendered without assault on the 20th. The Confederate Gens. Howell Cobb, Gustavus W. Smith, Mercer, Robertson and McCall, were taken, together with a large number of officers of all ranks, and 1,600 prisoners altogether. Wilson's forces had traveled 481 miles marching twenty days. They took in all 182 guns in position and in the field, and 200 guns in arsenal. A large number of rolling-mills and iron foundries were destroyed, naval foundries, powder works, magazines, supply depots, &c. Selma itself was 240 miles from the base of operations. There is scarcely an officer on the staff who has not made personal captures of prisoners during the expedition. The force is made up mostly of western troops. Our losses, in all the engagements, amount to less than 350.

The enemy's loss at Selma is estimated by themselves at from four to five hundred.

Financial. From the New York Commercial, May 3d.1 The stock market continues to show a downward tendency. The remarkable success of the recent, "bull" Opposite indvenent, and a strong "bear" combination has now taken the lead of the market. As usual, Erie bears the brunt of the battle. Large blocks of the stock are thrown upon the market, the price sinking at each effort. Before the board, this morning, the price was down to 73-a decline of 11% from Monday, with a little disposition to buy at the board, the price rallied to 75%. Reading is also pressed freely upon the market, and continues to decline. The late "bulls" make little opposition to the new movement, as they can well afford to realize at the present declining rates. Judging from the aspect of the present movement , the course of prices appear likely to be downward, until a point is reached in values that appears to afford opportunity for a renewal of operations for a rise; but there eems to be no probability that the extreme of depression will be at all near the quotations from which the recent advance started. The market is altogether too strong, and money too easy for prices to reach, even temporarily, the low figures current five weeks ago.

Gold continues dull and weak, The dis-bursements of the Sub-Treasury, on account of the May coupons, make the supply on the street abundant, and the premium tends strongly downward. The price during the morning has been 141a141%. Money continues very abundant and easy, though there appears to be a slight turn against borrowers. The National Banks are not lending quite so freely; and the probability is that the payment of the large number of troops released from service may oblige the Secretary of the Treasury to draw more freely than of late upon those institutions.

The Right use of Tools. Many persons have but a limited use for the same tool. The first idea we have of a manure fork is to remove coarse manure, but it is far better than a spade in a garden. It does not require half the muscular strength that a shovel or space requires, and the ground can be pulverized much better. We use it altogether in the garden. When roots or weeds or grass spring up in a garden, they can be removed more easily with a fork than in any other way. Then there is the big hoe. We should not know how to get along without one, yet many persons never use one where we do. For digging turfs by the road side, and for levelling off knolls and hemmocks on meadows, no tool is better. There is the trowel, we think of it for plastering, yet for garden purposes no teol is better. An old axe that will not be injured by driving into the ground is always one tool for removing forest trees. The crowbar, which was made to handle stone, is an excellent article to set the bean poles when the land is hard. A thin shoeknife, which has been designed to cut leather, is the best toel we have ever found to cleft stocks for grafting. A bushel basket and a wheelbarrow are often better than oxen or drag for collecting small stones on land laid down to grass .- Maine Far-

Management of Restive Horse.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman -a Lewis county farmer-writes: "After your horse is harnessed to the carriage procure a lece of webbing as a broad strap feet long, fasten it securely around the off foot below the fetlock, then pass it up through the girths and lay the end over the dash board; see that everything is right, then standing on the off-side of the wagon take the strap in the right hand, proceed to get in; if the horse attempts to start pull on the strap, at the same time saying: 'whoa;'-the strap brings his foot up and makes it a pretty effectual 'whoa;' slack up on the strap as soon as you have stopped him, and if he attempts to start again repeat the operation. When you have got good ready to start, give the horse the word and go along. Repeat the operation until the horse will stand perfectly quiet at the word 'whoa,' always remember not whip your horse, but always treat him as you would a friend, with perfect kindness, and never say 'whoa' unless you want your horse to stand perfectly still. No man should un-own temper." PARAFFINE.-The use of Paraffine is truly astonishing. First, we see a patent butter or fruit-box made air and water tight by this article, there having been a patent taken out for this improvement. Several refineries are required to furnish enough to make chewing gum, which is beneficial to health, and highly recommended for constant use in ladies' sewing-circles, and amongst gossiping neighbors, &c. A good story is told of a Cincinnati refiner who had several tons of paraffine on hand, nicely ideodorized, and the demand was light. He sent a man through the towns of Ohio, and bought all the beeswax he could get, paying about forty cents. To one hundred pounds of beeswax he adds five hundred pounds of paraffine, same color and consistence and geheral appearance, but worth five cents a pound. Now they may detect the color, he thought, so he put it up in foil barrels, putting the brand "Star Refinery," Cincinnati, Ohio, (the name of course, is suppressed.) He annoints the barrels outside with petroleum, ships to New York to several merchants a hundred tons of pure beeswax, with this blinder at one end of each invoice: "Boxes are scarce, and I send the wax in refined oil barrels; and you can sell the barrels." The wax opens well-fine lot-very uniform-smells of the barrels a littlesells at eighty-eight cents per pound. Imagine the profits—five-sixth paraffine, one-sixth bees-wax. Writing on April 1st, the Roman correspondent of the London Morning Post says: "The dunner given by the Baron de Mayendorf to General McClellan was not such a public piece of homage as was represented by Renter's telegram. It was nominally a return for the civilties received by Russian officers at New York. General de Montebello and the General Commandant de la Place were present, as well as three or four Russian generals, the United States Minister, General Rufus King, and the Secretary of Legation, Mr. Hooker; but the entertainment appeared to have no political meaning, nor were any after-dinner speeches made. General McClellan is still in Rome." The famous oil city of Titusville must be an attractive lounging place for summer travellers. It consists of eighteen inches of mud, ground up into a paste, which is rather a fluid than a solid, 1,000 houses, 150 derricks. half-a-dozen churches, fifty or sixty steem engines; one theatre, two banks, four or five schools, two miles of wooden sidewalks, 100 oil cisterns, 7,600 people (including 3,000 spectators and traders, yelept transient population) 2,500 barrels of oil, several hotels, which have "struck" more oil than any well diggers in the quarter, a weekly newspaper, to be issued as as a daily before long—and other things too
